Cockton Hill Infants' School Curriculum Policy

Headteacher: Tom Cuthbertson Chair of Governors: Bob Woods

Date: May 2025

Date for review: May 2026

Introduction

The curriculum is all the planned activities that we organise in order to promote learning, personal growth and development. It includes not only the formal requirements of the National Curriculum, but also the range of extra-curricular activities that the school organises in order to enrich the experiences of the children at Cockton Hill Infants' School.

It also includes the 'hidden curriculum', or what the children learn from the way they are treated and expected to behave. We aim to teach children how to grow into positive, responsible people, who can work and co-operate with others while developing knowledge and skills, so that they achieve their true potential.

Vision and Values

Our whole school community have shared vision and values, everyone's contribution is appreciated and acknowledged. We strive every day to make this vision a reality. Our school curriculum at Cockton Hill Infants' School is underpinned by these values. The curriculum is the means by which the school achieves its objective of educating children in the knowledge, skills and understanding that they need in order to lead fulfilling lives.

The National Curriculum is just one element in the education of every child. There is time and space in the school day and in each week, term and year to extend beyond the National Curriculum specifications. The National Curriculum provides an outline of core knowledge around which teachers can develop exciting and stimulating lessons to promote the development of pupils' knowledge, understanding and skills as part of the wider school curriculum.

Cockton Hill Infants' School is in full agreement with the statement of aims included in the introduction to The National Curriculum Handbook for Primary Teachers in England. In addition to these aims, we have additional principles underpinning our curriculum. We have devised these principles through the needs of our cohort and the features and context of the area.

The underpinning principles are:

Nurture

Care compassion and kindness for each other and for oneself

Consideration for others

Recognising strengths of others

Experience

Living real life experiences as part of learning activities

Reflecting on our experiences and discussing with others

Building vocabulary

Respect

Respect for each other

Respect for oneself

Respect for the environment

Community

Being at the heart of the community

Recognising the impact we can have on the local community

Seeking opportunities to get involved in the local community

Organisation and planning

At Cockton Hill Infants' School we use a creative approach towards our curriculum planning, linking learning with the current topics/theme; whilst ensuring progression of skills. We recognise the crucial nature of whole school planning to ensure full coverage of Foundation Stage and the National Curriculum. Using long, medium and short term planning all staff are involved in ensuring that all aspects of the curriculum are adequately covered and that there is progression and continuity.

Inclusion

Teachers set high expectations for every pupil. They plan stretching work for pupils whose attainment is significantly above the expected standard. They have an even greater obligation to plan lessons for pupils who have low levels of prior attainment or come from disadvantaged backgrounds. Teachers use appropriate assessment to set targets which are deliberately ambitious.

The curriculum in our school is designed to provide access and opportunity for all children who attend the school. If we think it necessary to adapt the curriculum to meet the needs of individual children, then we do so in consultation with the child's parents.

If a child has a special educational need or disability, our school does all it can to meet these individual needs. Our provision complies with the requirements set out in the SEND Code of Practice. In most instances, if a concern arises suggesting that a child may have special educational needs, the teacher is able to provide resources and educational opportunities which meet these needs within the normal class organisation. Where more specialised curriculum is required, a child may have access to our SEND/Nurture provision in the butterfly room. This is usually in addition to class-based activities.

The role of the subject leader

The role of the subject leader is to:

- provide a strategic lead and direction for the subject;
- · support and offer advice to colleagues on issues related to the subject;
- · monitor pupil progress in that subject area;
- · provide efficient resource management for the subject.

The school gives subject leaders non-contact time, so that they can carry out the necessary duties involved with their role. It is the role of each subject leader to keep up to date with developments in their subject, at both national and local level. They review the way the subject is taught in the school and plan for improvement. This development planning links to whole-school objectives. Each subject leader reviews the curriculum plans for their subject, ensures that there is full coverage of the National Curriculum. All subject leaders work hard to provide a broad and balanced curriculum which meets the needs of all learners including those with special educational needs.

Monitoring and review

As part of the monitoring of their subject, leaders will undertake a variety of monitoring activities, in addition to taking account of the monitoring activities of other colleagues and professionals. An overview of our monitoring procedures for subject leaders can be found below.

